

I shout the loudest when...

by Willy Gilder

I doubt the loudest whenever

I laugh the loudest when something strikes me as funny. The trouble is, the rest of the world doesn't always get the joke.

I shout the loudest about what I see as injustice, about the bloody government and their uncaring ways

I doubt the loudest in my dreams, the Alzheimer's nightmares that leave me anxious and afraid

But really I shout the loudest at myself